

Press Release

Resilient Networks 'one to recognise' in Sunday Times Tech Track 100

London, 19th September 2011: Voice services provider Resilient Networks plc has been acknowledged as 'one to recognise' in The Sunday Times Tech Track 100 league table of private tech (TMT) companies for its continued leadership and growth in the voice market.

The Sunday Times Tech Track Ones to Recognise commended Resilient Networks consistently strong growth in the last four years, which has resulted from its provision of innovative and robust telecoms solutions for customers such as the Ministry of Defence, through its partnerships with BT and Orange. Resilient Network's sales grew 23% a year from £3.5m in 2007 to £6.5m in 2010.

"Resilient Networks is an innovative and agile company, constantly focused on offering the most robust and flexible managed voice solutions and it's incredibly exciting to be recognised for this in such a forum" commented Andrew Bale, CEO, Resilient Networks plc. "The consistent and strong growth we have experienced is a result not only of the market-leading solutions we provide but also the people behind them and our close relationships with our partners. We are poised for further growth and success as we move in to 2012."
